SUPERVISION OF STUDENTS

Since 2018 I have supervised 15 Master students at the Department of Political Science and the Department for International Development of the University of Vienna and assisted to more than 15 Master exams as second reviewer and Chair. I currently supervise four doctoral students and am involved as second supervisor and reviewer of doctoral thesis conducted in Germany, the UK and Sweden.

Examples of recently completed Master theses:

- ❖ Simon Fellingner (The scientific and technical body of the BBNJ treaty) (Start: 02/2023, End 09/2024)
- ❖ Silvia Carolina Ruiz Rodriguez (Science and knowledge in the definition of ABMTs and MPAs in the BBNJ negotiations) (Start: 02/2020, End 09/2021)
- ❖ Tihana Kovač (Concepts of environmental migration in Climate Change Politics) (Start 09/2019, End: 06/2022)
- ❖ Michael López (Paradigm Shift or Power Preservation? A Realist view on Ocean Politics: Analyzing the ongoing debates of a possible legally binding instrument governing Marine Genetic Resources in areas beyond national jurisdiction) (Start 10/2020, End: 04/2022)
- ❖ Gidion Bischoff - Blue Economy in the Ports of Africa and Europe: An analysis of the implementation and effects of a concept on sustainable economic growth (Start 11/2020, End: 12/2021)
- ❖ Anne-Sophie Frayssinet- French Nuclear Policy Discourse (Start 10/2018, End: 12/2019)

Examples of ongoing Master thesis:

- ❖ Daria Sander (“Who owns marine biodiversity”: analyzing the common heritage of humankind principle in the BBNJ negotiations) (Start 03/2022)

Doctoral thesis supervision

- ❖ Arne Langlet - Research Authority in a Regime Complex - The Institutional Networks for Monitoring High Seas Biodiversity (Defensio: 11/03/2024)
- ❖ Ina Tessnow-von Wysocki - Science-Policy Interfaces for Ocean Protection: The case of the international negotiations for the conservation and sustainable use of marine biodiversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction (Defensio: 18/03/2024), received two Awards of Excellence for her doctoral thesis.
- ❖ Paul Dunshirn- PhD Student co-supervised by Ass. Prof. Vadrot and Prof. Bomze in the framework of the Research Platform “Governance of Digital Practices” led by Prof. Prainsack (FÖP 01/07/2022)
- ❖ Silvia Ruiz-Rodríguez- SOWI DOC stipend for Marine spatial closures and digital multilateral diplomacy (FÖP 01/10/2022)

- ❖ Wenwen Lyu – Data driven marine biodiversity governance (Start 01/12/2024)
- ❖ Felix Nütz- Digital Twins and the UN plastics treaty (Start 01/12/2024)
- ❖ Emil Hildebrand- Digital Twins and deep seabed mining (Start 01/12/2024)
- ❖ Carolyn Hirt- The making of the EU DTO (Start 01/12/2024)

External Reviewer of doctoral thesis conducted abroad

External Reviewer, PhD examination board (Andrei Polejack: ‘The All-Atlantic Ocean Research Alliance case’), World Maritime University, Malmö (Sweden), 2022

External Examiner, PhD examination board (Mika Schroder: ‘Spatial In/justice and the In/visibilisation of local actors within International Biodiversity Law’), Univ. of Strathclyde, Glasgow, Scotland (UK), 2022

ENGAGEMENT RELATED TO THE PLANNING OF TEACHING AND CURRICULA

- 2022– Involvement in the reform of the Bachelor and Master Programmes in Political Science and (at the periphery) the creation of a new Master Programme on “Socio-ecological transformations” at the University of Vienna
- 2023– Chair of PhD Committee, Dept of Political Science, Univ. of Vienna (Austria)
- 2022– Member of PhD Committee, Dept of Political Science, Univ. of Vienna (Austria)

REVIEWING ACTIVITIES

- 2024 Scientific Advisory Board of EU project “SeaDots - Social-ecological ocean management applications with Digital ocean twins”
- 2023 Scientific Advisory Board of FNRS Youth Earth project, CReSPo — Research Center in Political Science, Université Saint-Louis, Brussels (Belgium)
- 2022– Scientific Advisory Board of FNRS Youth Earth project, CReSPo — Research Center in Political Science, Université Saint-Louis, Brussels (Belgium)

Abstract In the light of time pressure, persisting data gaps, and challenges to the implementation of global sustainability goals for ocean protection, the European Commission is currently building a prototype digital twin of the ocean (DTO). The EU DTO is part of a larger set of substantial global and national efforts to develop highly accurate digital models of the ocean for ‘better decision-making’ and an emerging high-tech knowledge infrastructure that turns various types of ocean data into prediction tools for public and private actors with a stake in the transition towards sustainable ocean futures. However, DTOs, although needed to advance ocean science and governance, are a political issue in themselves. Firstly, DTOs run the risk of perpetuating global inequalities because the capacities to develop, access, and use ocean data, information, and science are unequally distributed. Secondly, DTOs may create an array of legal and political uncertainties regarding data access, ownership, security, and sharing. Thirdly, DTOs should be embedded into a set of norms, rules, and values to prevent abuse and misuse in practice — a neglected aspect in the current ‘twin rush’. TwinPolitics will overcome shortcomings in the study of DTOs by examining both the socio-technical making of DTOs for national scientific and political purposes and the politics of developing and using DTOs in an international setting. TwinPolitics will re-conceptualise digital twins as socio-technical relations operating under a specific set of institutional, political, and economic conditions and within a hybrid research, data, and observation environment. TwinPolitics will break new ground by developing a methodological approach that combines, on the one hand, qualitative and quantitative research on the practices, policies, and politics presiding over digital twins in national/regional contexts (EU, USA, China) with, on the other hand, the study of DTO use during multilateral negotiations.

Abstract

'Biodiversity Austria - International' acts as the national Austrian interface to the Intergovernmental Science-Policy Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services (IPBES). IPBES is the central intergovernmental body for assessing the state of global biodiversity and ecosystem services.

The new interface supports the integration of Austrian expertise in IPBES activities and strengthens political processes at Austrian level. IPBES processes and results are processed and communicated to stakeholders in a targeted manner as part of the project. Experts from science, political decision-makers and administrative officials are subsequently brought into the discourse. In this way, Biodiversity Austria - International strengthens the capacity to act to counter the biodiversity crisis in Austria and supports the protection and sustainable use of biodiversity.

Biodiversity Austria - International is funded by the Federal Ministry for Climate Action, Environment, Mobility, Innovation and Technology (BMK). The BMK is the National Focal Point for IPBES in Austria. There is close cooperation and exchange here. The focus here is on supporting the National Focal Point by providing expertise on various biodiversity topics, by accompanying IPBES tasks and plenary meetings, and by supporting the National Focal Point in its work.

Abstract

MARIPOLDATA is an ERC Starting Grant project running from November 2018 to October 2023. A research team led by the Principal Investigator Dr. Alice Vadrot develops and applies a new interdisciplinary and multi-scale approach to study new forms of power at the intersection between science, and politics. The project uses ongoing negotiations on a new international legally binding instrument under the United Nation Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) on the conservation and sustainable use of marine biological diversity of areas beyond national jurisdiction (BBNJ) to study these processes in action.

Marine biodiversity data will play a central role: Firstly, in supporting intergovernmental efforts to identify, protect and monitor marine biodiversity. Secondly, in informing governments interested in particular aspects of marine biodiversity, including its economic use and its contribution to biosecurity. In examining how this data is represented and used, this project will create a novel understanding of the materiality of science-policy interrelations and identify new forms of power in global environmental politics as well as develop the methodologies to do so. This is crucial because the capacities to develop and use data infrastructures are unequally distributed among countries and global initiatives for data sharing are significantly challenged by conflicting perceptions of who benefits from marine biodiversity research. Despite broad recognition of these challenges within natural science communities, the political aspects of marine biodiversity data remain understudied. Academic debates tend to neglect the role of international politics in legitimising and authorising scientific concepts, data sources and criteria and how this influences national monitoring priorities.

The central objective of MARIPOLDATA is to overcome these shortcomings by developing and applying a new multiscale methodology for grounding the analysis of science-policy interrelations in empirical research.

MARCO-BOLO Marine Coastal Biodiversity Long-term Observations https://marcobolo-project.eu/	Horizon Europe HORIZON-CL6-2022-BIODIV-01 (Biodiversity and ecosystem services)	8,614,089.00 (My part : 251,606.00)	01/12/2022 - 30/11/2026	Partner and task leader: Delivering social science expertise to the consortium/ Lead of subtask 6.1.2 (WP6): conducting a survey and profiling marine biodiversity data users and data needs/ Supervision of Research Assistant and Postdoctoral Researcher
Abstract MARCO-BOLO (MBO) aims to structure and strengthen European coastal and marine biodiversity observation capabilities, linking them to global efforts to understand and restore ocean health, hence ensuring that outputs respond to explicit stakeholder needs from policy, planning and industry. To this end MBO will establish and engage with a Community of Practice (CoP) to determine end-user needs with the aim of optimising marine data flows, knowledge uptake, and improving governance based on biodiversity observations. By exploiting synergies with concurrent projects MBO will develop and demonstrate new autonomous technology for biodiversity mapping and monitoring, and data streams from remote sensing, eDNA, robotics, optical and acoustic observations. Protocols for eDNA-based biodiversity observations are established and validated across applications, taxa and ecosystems. The sequence of the analytical and technical processes for the different use cases will be incorporated into operational Essential Ocean Variables (EOVs) and Essential Biodiversity Variables (EBVs) and included into online reusable workflows, contributing to the free and open access of EU and global biodiversity information facilities, and to support major EU biodiversity directives and global initiatives. The project partnership will leverage its international activities (MBON, GOOS, OBIS) and participation in UN Ocean Decade Programmes (Marine Life 2030, OBON, ODIS, Ocean Practices for the Decade) to align the MBO work programme to global CoP, ensuring European participation and leadership in global biodiversity monitoring and global science. MBO results will be designed to build upon existing capability and infrastructures, and to be relevant to existing frameworks so that outputs can be easily integrated into national, regional (EU and adjacent sea basins), and global observation systems, with no delay ensuring the reusability of the investments Europe is already making in data generation.
DIGIGOV Governance of Digital Practices Research Platform (PI: Prof. Barbara Prainsack) https://digigov.univie.ac.at/	University of Vienna (internal fund to foster interdisciplinary research cooperation)	659,885.23	01/10/2020 - 30/09/2024	Co-PI: Contribution to overall work of platform related to research, supervision and teaching/ Co-supervision of Doctoral Student Project ('Governing common resources via digital platforms', Paul Dunshirn) with Prof. Immanuel Bomze
Abstract This Research Platform brings together experts from the social sciences, law, and operations research to study and improve the governance of digital practices. Digital practices refer to all social, political, scientific and economic practices that create, use, or modify digital technologies - which in, in turn, are understood as socio-material entities. Our focus on the governance of digital practices enables us to both analyse how digital practices are shaped and regulated, and how people, places and populations are governed through digital practices.

The work of the Research Platform includes an analytic a normative component: Rather than merely studying what factors give shape to digital practices, members of the platform will also work towards developing new solutions for governing digital practices. This is particularly important in cases where digital practices lead to inequalities, exclusion or discrimination. At the same time, good governance of digital practices has the potential to enhance equity and strengthen democracy.

We also use the opportunities provided by the Research Platform to engage colleagues outside of the platform, as well as policy makers and publics, with our work. Three key themes - knowledge-intensive human work in the age of digital transformation, governing common resources via digital platforms, and digital health care governance and privacy - will serve as the interdisciplinary nodal points of the platform. They will provide concrete opportunities to collaborate in research, writing, and the identification of further research (and research funding) opportunities beyond the first four years of the platform. The three themes will also be the focus areas around which we will organise our capacity building, third mission, and networking measures, including Winter Schools, work-in-progress seminars for all Principal Investigators (PIs) and students, and transfer workshops to enhance the value of our research locally, nationally and internationally.
